Event buildup

The image shown right was made by Aidan as a response to event participants asking us what to wear. Having the event being ambiguous and mysterious could have prompted this. The image was posted on the event page with the caption “Transcience is a night of individualism. No dress code.”; allowing participants to come naturally in a comfortable skin of their own choosing, aiding recording and staying true to the aim of capturing a culture of individualism through the lens of the rave.

Story board A

Planning out what we actually want to shoot and the narrative we want to perceive prior to getting a camera in our hands is key to a smooth running shoot. This can be achieved though the mapping of storyboards.

The story boards in total detail one of the three videos that will be looped upon an individual touching the poster. With poster having capacity for three videos, we opted to replicate the story boards across three people exploring their individualism.