

Rave

flyer V2

A version was printed using the Risograph where red paper was used instead of red ink. The final design looked much better with this printing method. Due to the paper being hand cut from an A2 sheet, each A4 was slightly miss-aligned. However, this lead to ink layers distorting and warping which we actually valued. We feel this gives an organic and unique nature to each individual flyer.

Flyer drop

Invited participants of our event were teased with an edited image of the printed flyers drying and prompted to find Aidan personally to get their hands on their own print. This act tries to replicate the personal nature of the event but also hark back to how raves in the 90's publicised themselves through the process of hand flying and word of mouth awareness.
