Raving together...

This project has brought out both of our strongest attributes as designers. Developing a strong visual identity whilst considering interaction, programming and efficiency sometimes proved difficult, but working together has made the process easier. Managing the event (Transience) required a lot more work than initial consideration, in terms of advertisement, social presence and room setup. Despite this, Transience was a success and our hard work definitely paid off. People's perceptions of the night were interesting to see as nobody knew what to expect, but there was still a great amount of talk and hype surrounding it.

Coding with interactive visuals and audio saw occasional problems arise, but were all overcome by the end of the project. We look forward to everyone experiencing the polished interface at the show, and hope it provides as much enjoyment as we've had creating it.

THANK YOU
