To do...

From now until our show for the Festival of Creativity, we plan to film a few more videos of the piece's development, including the current interactive UI working alongside the techno sound files we've created. The interface design will also be optimised for when we start printing onto acrylic and mount onto the wall. We'll test the UI by creating an A2 stencil that can be used to print conductive ink through, ensuring the final design will work properly. Finally, the interface will be laser cut onto acrylic and mounted onto the wall before the show.
