

Story board A

Planning out what we actually want to shoot and the narrative we want to perceive prior to getting a camera in our hands is key to a smooth running shoot. This can be achieved though the mapping of storyboards.

The story boards in total detail one of the three videos that will be looped upon an individual touching the poster. With poster having capacity for three videos, we opted to replicate the story boards across three people exploring their individualism.

Story board B

Each video will be 30 seconds max meaning the poster will contain a total of 1:30 of video (max). This leave room for exploration in the poster but does not make the process to intensive for shooting/editing.

The narrative of the boards themselves details a snapshot of an individuals time at the rave. Although they are restricted by their environment and the shots themselves, their own personality will will hopefully shine through as a result of this.
